Problems:

Physiological phimosis

Plan:

Review in a year

Thank you for your referral of Samuel, who I saw today with dad. Dad's concern is that Samuel's foreskin has never been retractable. He complains of spraying, he has had no infections, no pain and has a good stream. There is no significant past medical history.

On examination he has very mild cobra eye deformity of the foreskin, but the foreskin is complete. On attempts at retraction the mucosa pouts, but there is minimal retraction and I am unable to see the glans. His testes are normally descended and I explained to dad that I think that this is a physiological phimosis and the best thing to do at the moment as he is asymptomatic is to give him time to see if this will resolve itself overtime and it maybe that if things do not settle down or he develops symptoms that he may require a trial of Betnovate cream and in some cases may require surgery, but I think the best thing to do at the moment is nothing and to review him in a year.

With best wishes.

Yours sincerely

CLINICAL INFORMATIONHistory of presenting complaint*Presenting complaint

Description: Physiological phimosis

Comment: Dear Paeds,

Please could you see boy in clinic with a view for a circumcision.

Since young has always had a tight foreskin; balloons when he pees and sprays everywhere. No urinary obstruction. No discharge/ redness/ pain to suggest infection as an acute cause. O/E folds of excess foreskin; on firm retraction, only a small amount of the meatus/ urethra is visible. Unable to retract further.

Mum is keen for circumcision, and I would agree that this is probably beneficial. We have tried topical steroid creams but I would be grateful if you could see him in clinic. Thanks.

Kind regards
Dr K Lin
